Cancer Support Community Central Ohio Welcomes New Member to Board of Directors

COLUMBUS, Ohio (March 21, 2016) – Cancer Support Community Central Ohio is pleased to announce the appointment of Ryan Szymanski, President of Edwards Communities Development Company, to its board of directors. In addition to his general board responsibilities, Szymanski will be serving on the Development Committee.

“I am a strong believer in the Cancer Support Community mission of providing supportive services and education to people who are facing cancer,” offered Szymanski. “The organization is making a difference in thousands of lives each year.”

In Szymanski’s current role as President of Edwards Communities Development Company, he is involved in all aspects of the development process for the company’s student housing and multi-family developments. He holds both a Bachelor of Science degree in Mechanical Engineering and a Master of Business Administration degree from The Ohio State University. Before obtaining his MBA, Szymanski spent four years as an officer in the United States Navy as an instructor at the Naval Nuclear Power Training Command in Charleston, South Carolina.

“Ryan’s experience in the development and financial fields will play a crucial role in the execution of our three-year strategic plan,” said Bev Sault, President and CEO of Cancer Support Community Central Ohio. “We know he will be a great addition to our board and are eager to start working with him.”

After living downtown for almost six years, Szymanski moved to Bexley with his wife, Alison, and two children. When he is not working, Szymanski enjoys traveling and eating delicious food.
